From the Clergy

A leap of faith opened pathways to history, connection, and light I never imagined.

Dear OST Family,

As I sit to write this bulletin message, we find ourselves in the midst of Chanukah, an event that commemorates that a few dedicated Jews, the Maccabees, armed with faith and ingenuity, were able to defeat the mighty Greek Assyrian army which sought to destroy the Jewish people. Particularly, during these fraught times for Jews, this ancient holiday teaches us that the path of life is unpredictable; we never know, even in the midst of great trials, what awaits us. With courage, strength, and hope - and with God's help - light and even miracles may await.

Such was my experience of Chanukah this year. As many of you know, I traveled to Paris to meet close relatives of whom I never knew and who never dreamed that I might exist either. My namesake and grandmother, Rozalia, was one of six children, five of whom survived into adulthood and all but one of whom were murdered by the Nazis. Rozalia's younger brother, Max, had emigrated to Paris for a better life. He met and married Francois and they welcomed a wonderful baby boy, Philippe into the world. Max was killed while fighting for the French army and Philippe, a young boy of five and now nearly ninety, survived by hiding in the south of France. Assuming that all of his paternal relatives had perished, his otherwise very successful life was always overshadowed by his personal loss as well as the absence of extended family.

Deeply affected by her husband's experience as well as her own losses during the Shoah, his wife never gave up hope that somewhere in the world, Phillippe might have some family left. For years she searched genealogical sites, culled through documents, and pieced together our family's story, until one day, she found the missing proof that my father, Gustav Hermes, had survived the camps and had children and grandchildren living in the United States. I will share more in the future, but that is how I came to be in France, for the first time, traveling on my own to meet and stay with people I had never met, but whom I felt Here I am in the Place des Vosges in the Marais, my first time in Paris and it is a beautiful day. Of course, I headed straight for the Jewish quarter on Rue de Rosiers to walk the same cobblestones as our ancestors.

connected to instantly as if we had known one another all of our lives. The leap of faith I took, helped me to learn parts of my history I never knew; to explore a beautiful new country and culture; and, most of all, to create relationships with people who were so much a part of me, it was truly uncanny and remarkable.

The theme of this bulletin is "Pathways to Growth." I would add pathways to meaning, to joy, and to light. This new year, I urge all of us to dream, to open our hearts and minds, and to hope for a better future. Uncharacteristically, my willingness to do just these things yielded a Chanukah miracle that will illuminate my world for generations to come. May your willingness to do the same, bring more light and love into your world and into that of all those you love.

Wishing you a Happy and Healthy New Year,
Rabbi Roz

PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

Each season of life invites us to grow in new ways and consider the legacy we are creating.

As we celebrate Tu B'shevat, the birthday of the trees, I am reminded that we can learn a great deal from trees. Trees teach us that, like their roots, unseen foundations such as our values, ancestors, and identity, give us strength. Trees demonstrate that growth is not always visible, and sometimes we have to put in a lot of work before we see results, but it's worth it! Trees exemplify resilience and flexibility, showing us that it's possible to bend and not break, and encouraging us to adapt and regenerate. Trees are also symbols of generosity - bearing fruit, granting shade, producing oxygen and providing shelter.

Deuteronomy 20:19 states, "For a person is like a tree of the field." Rabbinic commentators say that like trees, humans need to grow continuously, deepen our roots, and bear fruit in different seasons of our lives.

I turned 60 a couple of months ago. This is the first milestone birthday where I feel like I'm really entering an older season of my life. Don't get me wrong - I feel as young and vibrant as ever! But something inside me is saying that 60 is really significant. I have been blessed with incredibly good years so far, and I enjoy life! I look back and see a lot of things I've done, learned, and been part of - but looking forward - how can I grow? What can I learn? In what ways will I bear fruit? What will my legacy be? How can I be like a tree?

Ohel Sholom provides many opportunities for each of us to grow. We can learn from speakers, book clubs, movies and classes. We can grow through worship, listening to the words of the sermon, engaging in prayer and hearing the uplifting and moving music. We can bear fruit by moving into the space of temple leadership, whether serving on a committee, volunteering, or joining the board. We can deepen our roots by being present, meeting each other, and strengthening our connection to our community. All of these will contribute to our individual legacies, as well as that of OST.

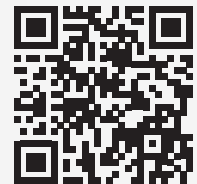

As you look through this Bulletin, I hope you'll see many ways to plant yourself and grow at OST, and I look forward to seeing you here!

OST ARCHIVES

Pathways to Growth: Our Archive's Oldest Artifact

Our congregation has grown from a small number of founders in 1844 to more than 600 families in 2026. We don't know the names of all the congregation's founders, but the OST Archive has preserved a silver pointer – or yad – that was crafted by someone we believe was one of the founders. It is our oldest artifact, and it dates to 1850.

A yad, which is Hebrew for hand, is used by Torah readers so they don't have to touch the Torah itself. This yad was made by Abraham Kayton, an early congregant. Kayton (1797-1855), a silversmith, immigrated to Norfolk in 1835. The yad he made identifies him as the craftsman with the inscription "A. Kayton." An inscription in Hebrew notes that Abraham was the son of Naphtali. Kayton was listed in the Index of Virginia silversmiths, along with his son, Bernard, who may also have been a congregant.

We know that Abraham Kayton was in Norfolk when Jacob Umstadter arrived and began holding services in 1844. The congregation was then known as Chevra B'nai Yaakov, or Society of the Sons of Jacob (the Biblical son of Isaac and grandson of Abraham). Kayton died in 1855, the year of the terrible Yellow Fever epidemic that claimed the lives of 2,000 residents of Norfolk and 1,000 of Portsmouth. We don't know if that was the cause of Kayton's death, and we don't know where he is buried. Although there are five graves in the Hebrew Cemetery from 1855, the grave of Abraham Kayton is not one of them. But the beautiful 175-year-old yad he crafted was used this past September in the Yom Kippur morning service. We have grown, but we have not outgrown honoring our past.

Like the roots of a young tree, much of our growth happens gradually, long before it is visible.

As we make our way through the winter and start dreaming about the first signs of spring, Tu B'Shvat, the "New Year of the Trees," reminds us to pause and notice how growth really works. So much of it is quiet and steady, happening long before we see anything bloom. It's a perfect moment to reflect on the small, meaningful steps that help all of us grow, both as individuals and as a community.

In our Religious School, we see growth every week. Our students learn not only Hebrew and about the holidays, but also how to ask big questions, make meaningful connections, and begin shaping their own Jewish identities. Like the roots of a young tree, much of their development happens gradually: the growing confidence in leading a blessing, the spark of recognition when they connect a text to their own lives, the steady strengthening of friendships formed in the classrooms and sacred spaces of OST. These are the pathways that nurture deep, lifelong Jewish learning.

The idea of growth also resonates deeply with my own journey. As many of you know, I have been pursuing my Executive Masters in Jewish Educational Leadership at HUC-JIR. It has been a transformative experience—one that has stretched me, challenged me, and inspired me in ways that I bring back to our community each and every day. I am excited to share that I will be graduating this May, and I am incredibly grateful for the support and encouragement I have received from our OST family throughout this process. Just as our students learn and grow here, I, too, am continually growing alongside them.

Tu B'Shvat teaches us that growth is not something that happens all at once. It is a series of small acts: tending, nourishing, learning, trying again. In that spirit, may we each continue carving our own pathways to growth, and may we support one another in the sacred work of lifelong learning.

In that same spirit of nurturing growth, we are excited to share two upcoming opportunities that support our students' learning journeys. On February 1, our 5th Grade B'nai Mitzvah Pathways Program will bring families together to explore what it means to take the next steps toward becoming B'nai Mitzvah—strengthening both skills and connections as students enter this meaningful chapter. Later in the month, on Sunday, February 22, our incredible OSTY teens will once again lead our annual Purim Carnival, creating a joyful and engaging experience for our younger learners while developing their own leadership along the way.

I hope that this season inspires all of us to keep learning, trying new things, and supporting one another along the way. Here's to growing together in all the best ways.

Pathways to Growth

I've moved through several major career shifts. I began as a news reporter, but after years of covering difficult stories, I felt a pull to do more than describe the world's problems — I wanted to help repair them. That led me into environmental activism, first through organizations I founded in Charlottesville and later as a lobbyist for the Sierra Club in Richmond.

Another pathway opened with the birth of my children. I realized that nurturing young people who care about their world might have a deeper impact than trying to change the minds of adults already set in their ways. So I returned to school — again — to study science education. Two degrees and three children later, I found myself exactly where I was meant to be: in the classroom.

The next turn was unexpected. The intensity of my work and my drive to serve eventually led to burnout and illness. Though painful, it became a turning point. Stepping back forced me to reimagine how I wanted to work in the world, leading me to yoga, healing practices, and integrative health coaching. I discovered that while I could not change the entire world, I could help individuals transform their health — and that personal wellness and environmental wellness are deeply connected.

Most recently, my involvement with the Temple has opened yet another pathway. Through Sisterhood, leadership, and deeper engagement with our traditions, I am exploring my Judaism in ways I never imagined.

I am continually inspired by the pathways I see others pursuing. Sisters like Ellen Hundley, learning to challenge herself while accepting she cannot do everything; Margaret Sawyer, pushing past her comfort zone to welcome new faces; and faYe, who reminds us, "Well-behaved women seldom make history."

As Pirkei Avot teaches, "Turn it and turn it, for everything is in it." Growth is not a single moment but a continual turning. Together, as Sisterhood, we support one another in turning toward possibility, purpose, and who we are becoming.

The Mitzvah Committee once again completed a very successful Thanksgiving Drive for Jewish Family Services. Thanks to the generosity of our Religious School students and their families, as well as members of the congregation, we were able to fill 30 Thanksgiving bags for the holiday. The co-chairs were honored to deliver the bags on behalf of Ohef Sholom, and Jewish Family Services expressed deep appreciation for our contributions.

I also had the privilege of helping distribute the bags on Friday, November 21. In total, more than 300 families received Thanksgiving bags. Thank you to everyone who contributed and helped make this effort such a success.

Looking ahead, the Mitzvah Committee will be collaborating with Sisterhood on a Craft Day on Sunday, January 11, 2026, from 9:30 a.m.-12:00 p.m., where we will be making no-sew scarves for individuals experiencing homelessness in Norfolk. We hope you'll plan to join us.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED!

The Men's Club continues to grow and is committed to supporting OST to the fullest extent. We warmly welcome new volunteers to join our efforts. Our meetings are held on the first Wednesday of each month at 6 p.m., primarily at OST in Simon Hall, with the option to join via Zoom. Occasionally, we may have off-site meetings at special events or at members' homes. I would like to extend my gratitude to Ted Kaufman for generously hosting our December meeting at his residence.

Additionally, I would like to thank all volunteers who assisted with preparing latkes for the Religious School Hanukkah Event. It was encouraging to see new faces participate and support our community.

If you are not currently on the email list, please contact me at mensclub@ohefsholom.org. I typically send 2-3 updates each month regarding upcoming events and meetings. You can also reach me directly at 757-319-5088.

Thank you for your continued support.

Winter Visitors

JUDAISM

The lack of foliage on deciduous trees makes observation of birds much easier in the winter. Some birds can be seen year round while others are migrators only here in the cold months. Those birds have followed the Atlantic flyway and have come from the north for food. They will leave when temperatures here begin to warm and food is more abundant in the north. Once there they will start breeding and nesting. These migratory birds range from large birds like Tundra Swans, to various ducks, raptors, and smaller birds like the ruby crowned kinglets. They instinctively know the path to follow. Although robins are associated with spring you may have noticed a larger robin population here. Some of these are the migrants from the north that will soon head back while others are permanent residents.

In Judaism various birds such as doves, eagles, ravens, storks, and herons are symbolic. Some birds are considered Kosher while other are not. Israel's Hula Valley is part of the second busiest bird migration route in the world. The restored Hula Lake provides a resting place for these migrating birds.

Studies have shown that bird migration populations have declined. This can be due to many factors mostly caused by humans. There are things that we can do to help bird populations. We can provide water for birds which many like the robins bathe in. Other birds will visit bird feeders that you provide. Some birds will go in the bird houses for shelter while others will stay in the bushes and plant debris. Leaving dead plant stalks with seeds provide food and shelter for birds. Remember to turn lights off and close curtains. These practices will help birds here as well as those traveling back north and provide us with an opportunity to connect with the natural world.

Havdallah by the BEACH

As we look back on recent highlights from our fall, we're grateful to revisit our November 2 Havdallah by the Beach honoring Rabbi Roz. It was a meaningful evening filled with community, appreciation, and beautiful surroundings. To see more photos from the event, please use the link above.

The Blessing Bag project was conceived of to honor Rabbi Roz's 20 years of leadership in yet another tangible way by providing food and personal essentials for our neighbors in need. In the spirit of Tikkun Olam at its best, we created the concept and built a Wish List, which started the ball rolling. It warmed our hearts to watch the boxes and boxes of donations pour in. Then, as one big OST family, young and old came together on the first night of Chanukah to assemble 200 Blessing Bags filled to the brim with generosity and kindness. Religious School students, their parents, Cantor Jen and many volunteers worked side by side to pack the tote bags with love and compassion. The contents included 28 food items, hat-scarf-gloves set, toiletry bag, 3 pairs of new Bombas socks, a rain poncho, an all-day bus pass and more – topped off with a beautifully hand-colored card (by both children and adults!) and a personalized message of friendship. 80 bags will bring joy and comfort to our Soup Kitchen guests on December 29, and the remaining bags will be distributed throughout our community. With only a three-week turn-around time until Chanukah, this project reminded us what many hands can do when we come together to bring light to our little corner of the world.

A Community Celebration of Rabbi Roz

Kick off the night by spending time with Rabbi Roz, OST congregants and the greater Hampton Roads Community — friends old and new — enjoying hors d'oeuvres, cocktails, and a silent auction.

A seated dinner will follow with a short program celebrating 20 transformative years with Rabbi Roz and an exciting live auction offering amazing and highly sought after packages. Finish off the evening dancing to the music of a live band.

The joy, spirit, and connection Rabbi Roz has nurtured at Ohef Sholom, as well as the learning, prayer, and community that have flourished under her inspiring leadership will be honored.

This celebration is also an opportunity to raise funds for

Board Profiles

BRANDON TERKELTAUB

Brandon and his wife, Callah, are happily settled in Hampton Roads, where most days revolve around their energetic four-year-old, Leo, and their golden retriever puppy, Cooper. They are also getting ready to welcome a new baby boy in June, which has brought even more excitement into their home. Both Brandon and Callah grew up here, fell for each other in high school, and still live close to their families, which they feel incredibly lucky about.

Brandon is a Virginia Beach native through and through. He went to Hebrew Academy, Norfolk Collegiate, Kempsville High, and ODU. Today he works as a financial advisor with a focus on tax planning. He loves helping people understand their financial picture and seeing the relief that comes when a plan finally feels clear.

Judaism has always been woven into Brandon's life. He grew up at Temple Israel and later spent time at Beth El with his extended family. When he and Callah were expecting Leo, they started talking about what they hoped Jewish life would look like for their kids. They had always felt a strong pull toward OST thanks to warm experiences with Rabbi Roz and Cantor Jen, and also because of the deep connection his grandparents, Rose and Kurt Rosenbach, had with the congregation. Joining OST felt natural, and it still does.

Although this past year has been busier than expected, Brandon has enjoyed getting a closer look at how the Shul runs by being on the Board and hopes to take on more involvement as life settles. When he does find a quiet moment, you might find him playing guitar, reading, or watching a movie. More often, he is out exploring parks, chasing the puppy, or spending time at the beach with Callah and Leo.

INGER FRIEDMAN

Ingeresa and her husband, Brian, have built a life filled with family, tradition, and a shared love of the outdoors. Their twin sons, Neal and Cole, are now grown, yet still close enough for regular visits. Cole and his wife, Lauren, live in Norfolk, and Neal is in Richmond, so holidays often turn into joyful gatherings with extended family from near and far.

Ingeresa's own roots stretch across two worlds. Her father, Harry Pincus Jr, grew up in Norfolk, and her mother, Inger, was from Bergen, Norway. Childhood summers meant time in Virginia Beach and long stays with family in Norway. Winters brought a very different adventure. Each year her parents packed all five children into a nineteen-foot trailer for a ski week in Stowe, a memory that still captures the spirit of her family.

After graduating from Maury High, she earned degrees in mechanical engineering and aeronautics from George Washington University. A job posting Brian happened to spot led her back to Hampton, where she began a thirty-eight year career in aerospace engineering. She worked on aircraft models, engine test hardware, and advanced systems that moved from drawings to functional prototypes. The work was demanding, but watching new technology come to life never lost its excitement.

OST has been part of Ingeresa's family for four generations. She grew up attending services with her grandmother, was confirmed and married here, and later celebrated her sons' milestones in the same sanctuary. Now retired, she enjoys serving on the Temple and Sisterhood boards and staying active through volunteer programs.

Life today is full in the best way. She and Brian enjoy traveling, hiking, biking, live music, and tending their ever-growing garden. They also founded Friends of Lambert Point City Park to support conservation and expand access to natural spaces in the community they love.

Uniongrams

For just $3 per card, you're not only brightening someone's day—you're also helping shape the future of Jewish leadership and strengthening communities worldwide. Uniongrams embody the Jewish values of connection, compassion, and giving back.

So, let's honor this tradition together. Celebrate your loved ones, recognize milestones, and share joy—all while supporting meaningful work. Sending a Uniongram may be a small act, but its impact is anything but small.

Who will you celebrate today?
